'TEXT SAID MY SISTER WAS SAFE: AT FIRST I DIDN'T UNDERSTAND'

French tutor's sibling was working in Paris as terrorists struck

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

WHEN language teacher Guylaine Ganzhorn received a text message late on Friday night to say her sister was alive and well, she had no idea of the significance.

It wasn't until the following morning she learned of the attacks in Paris which claimed 129 lives, including Essex man Nick Alexander who was selling merchandise at the Eagles of Death Metal concert in the Bataclan when the terrorists struck.

Ms Ganzhorn, who moved from France five years ago to take up a teaching post at Burnt Mill Academy in Harlow, said: "I received a text from my mum on Friday night to say my sister was OK, but I didn't understand what she meant.

"The next day, lots of friends began contacting me to tell me about the attacks in Paris and, of course, by then it was also on the news. Thankfully, my sister was at home and was completely fine."

Work

While the majority of her family live in Saint-Etienne, her sister and many friends live and work in the French capital.

"I have spoken to my sister and she said we have to carry on with our lives as best we can and to learn lessons," said Ms Ganzhorn. "The terrorists will win if we cancel our trips to Paris and I don't want that. The risks are the same wherever you are; it could happen anywhere."

Ms Ganzhorn, who teaches French and Spanish at Burnt Mill, said she has been overwhelmed by the messages of support and concern she has received since the attacks.

"I spoke with my form on the first morning back about what has happened," she said. "The best thing we can do is to talk about it and to tackle the misconceptions about what has happened. As a languages teacher I am here to teach languages but also to help children to understand the different aspects of cultures around them."

"That is really important. If young people are aware of these things, maybe they can be prevented from happening."

Following the Paris attacks, Burnt Mill Co-operative Academy Trust is putting all 900 members of staff – from cleaners to head teachers – through Home Office training to tackle radicalisation.

Helena Mills, head of BMAT schools with includes Burnt Mill, Forest Hall in Stansted and four Harlow primaries, said: "We know that to prevent terrorism and atrocities, children are the answer.

"If they feel included and safe in the community they live in and make others feel safe and welcome, perhaps they can sort out what appears to be a bit of a mess at the moment."

Anniversary is the time to celebrate parkrun

A WEEKLY 5km run around Harlow Town Park which regularly attracts more than 100 people celebrated its first anniversary on Saturday.

In the 12 months since it started, more than 1,300 people have taken part in the Harlow parkrun and almost 6,000 runs have been completed.

The free-to-enter runs, which were initially launched with funding from Harlow Health Centres Trust and Active Essex with support from Harlow Council and Active Harlow, are now managed by a team of volunteers led by event director Vicky Calver.

Harlow Council chairman Tony Hall turned up on Saturday to cheer on the 149 people who took part in the anniversary run, while Councillor Karen Clempner made a birthday cake to thank the parkrun team and the volunteers for their efforts.

The parkrunner of the year award was won by Martin Elven.

Fallen tree causes chaos for rail users

Overhead lines damaged during Storm Barney

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE travel plans of thousands of commuters were thrown into chaos yesterday morning (Wednesday) when train services through Harlow were disrupted after a fallen tree damaged overhead cables.

Train operator Abellio Greater Anglia reported the fallen tree had blocked lines and was forced to cancel services between Harlow and Bishop's Stortford.

The tree, which was brought down at about 8pm on Tuesday by 60mph gusts of wind during Storm Barney, damaged power lines near Sawbridgeworth station.

Network Rail engineers were dispatched to fix the damage and restore normal services but disruption continued throughout the morning and into the afternoon.

A modified service operated between Liverpool Street and Harlow Town and between Bishop's Stortford and Cambridge, with two trains per hour running in both directions. A shuttle train service ran between Bishop's Stortford and Stansted Airport.

In addition, a limited replacement bus service ran between Bishop's Stortford and Harlow Town, calling at Sawbridgeworth and Harlow Mill.

Elsewhere in Essex there were reports of trees falling across roads, including one on the A1184 Harlow Road, between Redricks Lane and the Straw Hat restaurant.

Essex County Fire and Rescue Service said its crews attended more than 25 incidents of trees on roads which were deemed to cause a risk to life.

Essex Weather Centre said the strongest gust of wind recorded in the county was 64.4mph at Southend Airport.

Meanwhile, residents are being invited to sign a book of condolence at the Civic Centre. Harlow is twinned with the town of Velizy-Villacoublay which is located nine miles from the centre of Paris. The book will be sent to the mayor, Pascal Thevenot.

Harlow MP Robert Halfon expressed his horror at the attacks. "Terrorists want us to be afraid, but the best thing that we can all do is to carry on with our lives and cherish the freedoms that they want to destroy," he said.

I'm not proud of myself says MP after he admits affair

HARLOW MP Robert Halfon has spoken of his shame after admitting he had an affair with a Conservative Party activist.

Mr Halfon, 46, who was promoted to the position of deputy chairman of the Conservative Party after the General Election in May, has a long-term partner but is not married.

According to the Daily Telegraph, he was reportedly told of an alleged plot by senior Conservative aid Mark Clarke to photograph him and the woman, named as PR executive Alexandra Paterson, in order to blackmail him with the pictures.

This week Mr Halfon released a statement in which he said he was grateful for the messages of support he had received since the story broke.

"My number one priority has been to always work hard for Harlow," he said. "What I did was wrong and I feel ashamed. I am not proud of myself."

Ability

"The most important thing to me is to continue to repair my relationship with my partner. I will continue to work to represent Harlow in Parliament to the very best of my ability."

A Conservative Party spokesman said it was investigating a serious complaint against Mr Clarke in regard to another matter, adding that party chairman Lord Feldman had authorised an investigation into that complaint and disciplinary proceedings have begun.

"Mark Clarke's membership of the party, and his involvement with the party, have been suspended pending the outcome of those proceedings, which are in progress. Mr Clarke was also forbidden to attend the Conservative Party conference."

"If the allegations against Mr Clarke are found to be true, the Party Board will permanently exclude Mr Clarke from the party. There would be no prospect of him being allowed to apply to be a Conservative Party candidate of any kind or to represent the party in any respect again."

It's beginning to feel a lot like Christmas

THE countdown to Christmas is officially under way after Harlow's town centre lights were turned on.

Harlow Council chairman Tony Hall and vice-chairman Edna Stevens flicked the switch to light up Broad Walk, Harvey Centre Approach and Cross Street on Friday.

As well as the traditional 30ft tree in Broad Walk, the illuminations have been extended around the Quasar building and falling snowflakes will be projected onto the building above Card Factory, Savers and Costa Coffee in Broad Walk.

More than 40 static LED snowflakes have been suspended from the side of the building to complement the projection.

The following day more than 500 people braved the torrential rain to enjoy the Launch of Christmas festivities in The Water Gardens. There were performances by the Funky Voices Choir, Hertford Rock Choir and singer Aaron Norton before characters from the Disney film Frozen sang Let It Go and then turned on the lights.

Centre manager Beryl Murphy said: "We would like to thank everyone who came out and supported the switch-on despite the weather."

Over in the Harvey Centre, characters from the song The Twelve

Days of Christmas, "living" Christmas trees and roaming candy canes mingled with shoppers while Snow White from this year's Playhouse pantomime also put in an appearance.

For youngsters there was a chance to meet Santa Claus in his Christmas grotto.

Centre manager Bryan Young said: "We wanted to make sure it was bigger and better than ever. The centre had a host of Christmas characters and entertainment to really get our shoppers into the festive spirit."

Murderer 'had taken part in bare-knuckle fighting'

Revelation at inquest investigating lead-up to fatal assault

Court Reporter

star@hertssexnews.co.uk

THE man convicted of the murder of his pregnant girlfriend in Harlow three years ago had taken part in bareknuckle fights for money, it was revealed this week.

Tony McLernon, of North Grove, Harlow, attacked 20-year-old Eystna Blunnie in June 2012, kicking and stamping on her head. Both she and her unborn daughter died in hospital.

During his trial it emerged McLernon, who was jailed for life with a minimum of 27 years, had assaulted previous girlfriends.

Giving evidence during the second week of an inquest investigating the circumstances leading up to the fatal attack, Ian Carr, area director of North Essex Mental Health Partnership NHS Trust, said McLernon's first involvement with mental health teams was in 2008, followed by occasions in 2010, 2011 and March 2012.

Mental illness

Mr Carr said that at no time was McLernon diagnosed as having any mental illness although he had issues with excessive alcohol misuse and in 2010 had admitted using cocaine.

When asked by area coroner Eleanor McGann what mental health practitioners knew about McLernon's violent tendencies, Mr Carr said he told a psychiatric team in 2010 he took part in bareknuckle homeless application was eventually completed successfully and a letter dated the day before she died was due to be sent to her parents' address offering her a one-bedroom flat. However, it was never posted because the council had been informed of her death.

Under cross-examination by a lawyer representing Ms Blunnie's parents, Mr Carr said information about McLernon's previous domestic violence was not known to those dealing with him.

Ms Haq told the inquest: "I didn't get a sense of urgency from her that safety was her priority. Her priority was housing, she wanted a one-bedroom flat in Harlow."

Referring to the last contact she had with Ms Blunnie before her death, Ms Haq said: "She mentioned that she felt let down that Tony hadn't been charged. She was angry but excited because she was looking forward to the baby."

Information not released

SIR Harlow Council's statement, reported in the October 22 edition of the Star, that information covered by the Information Commissioner's decision had been released to HWRA is incorrect. HWRA did not submit the request, nor was the information released to HWRA.

The statement also refers to the council's commitment to be open and transparent. If that were true, why did it take 16 months and the intervention of the Information Commissioner to supply information the spokesman says was requested in June 2014? Freedom of Information legislation requires public authorities to supply information within 20 working days.

The article refers to a year-long legal battle in the High Court at the end of which a judge ordered the winding up of Harlow Welfare Rights & Advice. As the former chairman of HWRA, I would like to point out that a judicial review hearing which was due to consider HWRA's case was adjourned for three-and-a-half months at the council's request.

HWRA trustees reluctantly agreed to this on the assumption the council was acting in good faith and was genuinely interested in reaching a settlement. Sadly, that was not the case and within days of failing to reach agreement the council applied to wind HWRA up.

The issues covered by the judicial review that was adjourned, and other legal matters HWRA had wished to pursue, were never heard by the courts.

HWRA resisted the wind-up application on the grounds that a counter claim for breach of contract and other failures on the council's part was greater than the sum owed by HWRA. Sadly HWRA's ability to provide evidence to support this claim was hampered by the refusal of the council to allow access to complete a repair to HWRA's IT server which was based at the Advice Centre. There were no funds left to appeal the decision so the trustees were reluctantly forced to accept the outcome of the hearing.

I hope that this information, added to that released on the order of the Information Commissioner, will help to put the record straight.

Providing best care possible

SIR We write to clarify statements which were reported in the article in the November 7 edition of the Star headlined "Hospital to lose beds as staff problems worsen".

The report states that the PAH NHS Trust "will prepare for closures of the A&E department over the winter period". There are categorically no plans to close our emergency department, either temporarily or longer term.

The ED would only close its doors on a temporary basis if we were to reach full capacity and that is not something we either plan nor envisage.

We have been working extremely hard with our health and social care partners to ensure that there is additional capacity outside the trust to care for patients who could be better looked after out of hospital in order to maximise the number of beds available for acutely sick patients.

The article states that we plan to close four beds on each ward progressively. The reality is that we may need to close a number of beds temporarily due to staff shortages.

However, the trust is currently involved in a major nurse recruitment drive and we are hopeful this will lead to around 200 additional nurses in place by the end of the year, reducing agency costs significantly and allowing us to re-open the affected beds safely and effectively.

We hope this reassures your readers and instils confidence that we are working extremely hard to continue to provide all of our patients with the best care possible at all times.

Douglas Smallwood, chairman
PAH NHS Trust

The memories will never die

SIR I'm having a lot of trouble with the emotional disconnection I need to employ to say goodbye to The Square, which is due to close next month.

The Howard and Clack/Tender Trap gig on Saturday, November 7 did not help at all. Once again the room was filled with a brilliance that shone, not just because of what The Square provides as a building but as an example of a scene it has nurtured over the years, allowing bands and songwriters to blossom.

The broad range of material that Paul Howard displayed was testament to that, with the added gem of the Tender Trap material on this one night only.

It left us all breathless with the feeling of joy and of impending loss. You really don't know what you've got till it's gone.

I realised that at the end of a wonderful evening I had not filmed a moment of it. It was old school you see, being lost in the moment because it's not what you film it's what you feel. You have to be there.

So please, if you haven't done so yet, vote for The Square as being Britain's best small venue in the NME poll (www.nme.com/smallvenues) and encourage everyone you can think of to do the same.

Let's make sure The Square remains on the map of our souls and maybe in the real world too.

Because if it wins we all do, as it would then be impossible to be allowed to disappear completely.

A question of accountability

SIR In response to the letter from Gary Roberts ('Give residents a say on board', October 22) I cannot see where I have rewritten the past and I would ask him what opportunities there are to sit on the board of the Local Authority Trading Company which is being set up to replace Kier Harlow.

It's not rewriting the past to point out that the head of housing has twice disbanded participation, on the last occasion because the effectiveness of the council's Decent Homes Programme would not stand up to independent tenant scrutiny.

As one of the instigators of Harlow's excellent area committees structure where neighbourhood officers and councillors were held to account by local people in open forum, Mr Roberts will be only too aware the council can disband even the most effective structure without discussion at will.

He has made the mistake of confusing Kier Harlow, which provided the services the council will now transfer to LATC, and Kier Services, which along with United House and KeepMoat were contractors on the council's Decent Homes Programme. I agree I have been one of the most vociferous and trenchant critics of the council's decent homes contractors, not Kier Harlow.

It was not always plain sailing but members of the Repairs Standard Panel always knew we could escalate residents' issues up the line through Kier's senior management. While we did not always get the result we wanted, individual issues were resolved and for policy issues we nearly always were able to present a united position to the council.

While not perfect, Kier Harlow always worked with us and in my experience took responsibility for their actions at senior level in an open and transparent way. This I believe makes them accountable; can the same be said about Harlow Council?

Mike Carr
Rundells, Harlow

Soaked by a selfish driver

SIR Quite often there are letters on this page from people wishing to publicly thank others for providing them with help at some moment of adversity. Regrettably, the incident related here is not in that category.

As people who use the northern end of Rye Hill Road will know, the road is subject to flooding following periods of sustained heavy rain or a sudden cloudburst.

Water runs off the fields at the back of Berecroft and flows into and along a ditch on the east side of the road until it reaches the footpath entrance to the fields. From there it continues into a sewer pipe of inadequate dimension and the surplus spills out onto the road, forming a river which can be as much as half the width of the carriageway.

At about 11.30am on Wednesday, November 4 I was on the footpath outside my house, having just positioned our recycling bin by the footpath for collection the following day. I was about to re-enter our driveway when, out of the corner of my eye, I spotted a white van coming down the hill at speed.

Before I could get out of the way it ploughed through the river of water, creating a giant bow-wave. I was soaked to the skin from head to foot.

Thank you, van driver: I am sure you know who you are.

Teenager with top IQ score celebrated across Europe

Academy student Nicole invited to EU parliament

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

A GIFTED teenager, who hit the headlines for recording a perfect score in a test set by the high IQ society Mensa, has been celebrating her achievement.

Nicole Barr, 13, scored a mark of 162 – two points higher than physicist Albert Einstein and Professor Stephen Hawking – which puts her in the top one per cent of intelligent people in the world.

Year 8 student Nicole, who is a member of the travelling community, has just returned from an all-expenses paid trip to the European Parliament.

The Burnt Mill Academy student, who had just 25 per cent attendance at primary school, has also attracted attention from Oxford University, who welcomed her along for a tour.

Cope

She said: "It's all a bit overwhelming; I'm trying to cope with everything that's happening."

"I had bad attendance at primary school and my mum struggled to get me to come to Burnt Mill on my first day, but this school has turned my life around."

"If I had gone to another school I would not have got that score in the Mensa test."

"Ever since the first day I have been excited every single day to come to school because of the way they teach. It's amazing to come to Burnt Mill."

FLASHBACK: Star, July 30

During her three-day trip to Brussels last week with mum Dolly, Nicole took part in the Roma Youth Empowerment conference celebrating successful academic achievements of people from the Roma community.

Nicole was personally invited to take part in the conference, where she was able to share her story with others from the Roma community around the world.

She said: "There was a roller banner with a biography about me for everyone to read about what I have achieved and what I am interested in."

"The whole conference was about how much Roma can achieve. People say bad things about Roma that aren't true and often judge a book by its cover. "My mum says people claim to be from Roma and do bad things, but our community is civilised and good."

"It was an amazing experience and I learnt a lot. I am really proud I could be a part of it; it was such a big opportunity for me."

After reading of her academic success, Oxford University got in touch to invite Nicole to spend a day on site.

Nicole, who wants to study medicine, said:

"I was able to carry out some experiments, including one on a beating heart and extracting DNA from a pea."

"I've never been to a university before, so it was nice to have a look around."

Woman bitten in face by dog needs stitches

A WOMAN needed stitches to a wound on her face after she was bitten by a dog in Harlow.

Police are investigating the incident which took place outside the Co-op supermarket in Bush Fair, Harlow, at about 8.30pm on Wednesday, October 21.

The 35-year-old victim, who lives in the town, was bitten by a Staffordshire bull terrier. She suffered a wound to her nose that required stitches and swelling to her face.

Anyone with information about the incident should contact PC Karl Wicks at Harlow police station on the Essex Police non-emergency 101 number.

Pair injured in street assault

TWO men were taken to hospital after they were assaulted in Epping in the early hours of Sunday morning.

Police officers and paramedics were sent to the scene shortly after 3.30am after receiving reports of a disturbance in the High Street.

The victims, both aged 24 and from Bristol, were taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital. One suffered a head injury and the other a fractured jaw.

The man with the head injury was kept in while the other was treated and released.

Police said their investigation was ongoing and have appealed for any witnesses to contact detectives at Loughton on 101.

Lighting up memories of loved ones

ORGANISERS of this year's St Clare Hospice Christmas lights services have released details of when and where they are taking place.

A total of nine Light Up A Life services will be held before Christmas Day, with a further two – including one in Harlow – will be held early next year.

The services are a chance to join others in remembering relatives and friends who have passed away.

A hospice spokeswoman said: "Light Up A Life gives everyone, whether they have a personal connection with St Clare or not, a very special way to remember those we will be missing over the festive period and honour their memory in a very personal way."

Two services will be held at the hospice in Hastingwood, one on Wednesday, December 9 at 7pm and the other three days later on December 12 at 4pm.

Memory

They will include readings, music and the lighting up of a tree, with each light representing the life and memory of someone who has died.

The other services will take place at Methodist Church in Loughton (Saturday, November 28, 4.30pm), Waltham Abbey Church (Thursday, December 3, 7pm), St John's Church in Epping (Saturday, December 5, 5.30pm), St James' Church in Buckhurst Hill (Saturday, December 5, 6pm), St Martin's Church in Ongar (Thursday, December 10, 4pm), United Reformed Church in Great Dunmow (Sunday, December 13, 3.30pm) and St Mary's Church, in Stansted Mountfitchet (Sunday, December 13, 10am).

Additional services at the Harlow Jewish Centre and St Mary's Church in Saffron Walden and will take place in the new year.

CARE QUALITY COMMISSION: PAH trust says it is already working to address the Hospital taking steps to 'improve for the future'

Leaders voice concern over support 'cut'

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE NHS trust which runs Princess Alexandra Hospital insists it is working to change the face of health and social care in Harlow and West Essex in light of a Government report that called for improvements.

England's Chief Inspector of Hospitals told PAH bosses it must make improvements following an inspection in July by the Care Quality Commission.

The trust was rated overall as requiring improvement but was judged good for whether its services were caring and in need of improvement for whether its services were safe, responsive, effective and well-led.

The report highlighted the same key concerns that the Government Success Regime was set up to address, namely capacity issues, pressure on hospital beds and staff shortages. PAH has now been removed from the GSR.

Professor Nancy Fontaine, PAH's chief nurse and deputy chief executive, told the Star that the trust welcomed the report and had already taken action to address the concerns it identified.

She said: "We are working with our commissioners, social and community care partners to offer integrated community primary care under one roof to ease pressure within the hospital.

"There will be much more joined up

BEST OF HEALTH: Filming for a recruitment video for nurses. Right, Professor Nancy Fontaine, chief nurse and deputy chief executive of the PAH NHS Trust health and social care, but there will always be an acute hospital here."

As many people pass through PAH's accident and emergency department as Addenbrookes Hospital in Cambridge, with hundreds of patients from across Essex and Hertfordshire attending outpatient appointments across the trust's sites in Harlow, Epping, Bishop's Stortford and Cheshunt each week.

"Further to that, what is particularly challenging is the local population is ageing and socially becoming more complex," said Professor Fontaine.

The trust provides a comprehensive range of district acute, community and specialist services to a population of 258,000 people.

Inspectors found the trust had significant capacity issues and was having to reassess bed capacity at least three times a day.

The pressure on beds meant that patients were allocated the next available bed rather than being treated on a ward specifically for their condition, while staff shortages meant wards were struggling to cope with the numbers of patients.

Closures of accident and emergency departments across the region have also added to the pressure faced by PAH, with almost 50 per cent of patients now coming from Hertfordshire.

Professor Fontaine said: "We are under no doubt that we've seen many more people from the margins of Hertfordshire and Essex come to us."

Despite its concerns, the CQC noted that staff were exceptionally caring and went the extra mile for patients despite the added pressures on their workloads.

"It's really heartening," said Professor Fontaine. "These are the experiences of patients and of families, that we are always caring and empathetic. That's really important to us."

In light of the report, the trust has launched a series of online videos to boost recruitment across the hospital. Seven nurses were filmed speaking about the perks of their jobs and how they got into the profession.

Professor Fontaine said: "If you are the right candidate, we will do everything we can to support you on your journey to becoming a nurse here at our hospital.

"Nursing at Harlow is not just a job but a career and we invest in our staff personally and support you to map out your future."

PAH is also promoting return to practice support for any former nurses who would be interested in returning to the role.

There is the option to work as a paid healthcare assistant while completing training and studying which is required to re-register as a nurse. For more information about the opportunities available, email getintonnursing@pah.nhs.uk.

THE leader of Harlow Council is calling on NHS bosses to support struggling Princess Alexandra Hospital.

Along with the leaders at East Herts, Epping Forest and Uttlesford, Cllr Jon Clemmner is concerned that the decision to exclude PAH from the Essex-wide Success Regime improvement programme puts plans to achieve a sustainable hospital and the local health system at risk.

In a joint statement, the four council leaders – Cllr Clemmner, Cllr Linda Haysey (East Herts), Cllr Howard Rolfe (Uttlesford) and Cllr Chris Whitbread (Epping Forest) said: "It is very concerning that NHS England, Monitor and the Trust Development Agency last week decided to cut the hospital and West Essex out of its intended package of support under the Success Regime.

"We urge NHS England to reconsider West Essex's exclusion so that long term solutions can be identified to the challenges being faced by the health system in West Essex and PAH.

"It is vital that the communities we serve have access to sustainable and appropriate health services to meet their needs."

Concerns highlighted in critical report

NEW ARRIVAL: Brenda Ijeoma with her baby daughter Nina, who was born at PAH at 2am on Tuesday

Praise for 'outstanding' maternity care

STAFF at Princess Alexandra Hospital's maternity unit have been praised for their "dedication, compassion and care" by Government inspectors.

The department was rated outstanding by the Care Quality Commission following a recent inspection, which gave the Hamstel Road hospital an overall rating of 'requires improvement'.

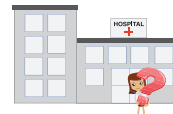

The inspectors said: "We observed several times throughout the inspection that the staff care were dedicated, compassionate, caring and they consistently went beyond the call of duty to deliver the best experience possible for them.

"Patients provided overwhelmingly positive feedback about the care they received."

Brenda Ijeoma, who gave birth to daughter Nina in the unit in the early hours of Tuesday, said: "I'd really recommend the birthing unit."

"The staff were attentive, friendly and approachable throughout. I could not have asked for a better service."

More help to support the survivors of brain injury

Charity receives grant to expand service

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A CHARITY supporting adults who have suffered a brain injury has received funding for a dedicated support worker covering Harlow.

Headway Essex, which is marking its 30th anniversary this year, was set up to help people cope with the after-effects of trauma injuries caused by a fall or a road accident as well as non-traumatic injuries such as brain haemorrhages, tumours, infections and strokes.

The charity, which relies on fundraising to provide its services, operates a community support service across Essex. It recently received funding to expand by appointing a support worker covering West Essex as well as setting up two support groups, one in Harlow and the other in Epping.

The Harlow group for survivors and their families meets at the Tye Green Community Centre in Tilegate Road. Carers-only meetings are held at the offices of Voluntary Action Epping Forest in Epping High Street.

Headway chief executive Joanna Wright said: "Without support, the long-term effects of brain injury can be devastating for the person with the injury and their family."

"At stake is their ability to return to work or college, hold the family unit together, care for themselves, communicate and socialise – almost everything we take for granted."

"As many of the disabilities are hidden, lack of understanding in the community adds to the problems they face and can make life even harder to cope with."

For more information about the charity's community support service or either of the Harlow and Epping groups, call the helpline on (01206) 768797 or visit the website at www.headwayessex.org.uk.

I finally saw a light in this dark place where we have been for so long

One family who have reason to be grateful for the services Headway Essex provides is Denise Ward (62) and her daughter Tanya (40), whose lives changed completely overnight when Tanya suffered a massive brain haemorrhage in 2014. Here Denise tells their story.

"BEFORE her brain injury Tanya was a full-time working mother with a 13-year-old daughter. They lived with me as I suffer from health issues myself and Tanya helped support me with daily living."

"I found Tanya on the morning of February 1, 2014 – she had been violently sick and was unable to talk. The paramedic came and suspected a stroke or bleed on the brain, but by the time we arrived at Harlow hospital she had deteriorated rapidly and I had an agonising two-hour wait to see if Queen's Hospital would accept her."

"I was told the bleed was so severe that the chance of Tanya surviving the operation was very slim and the resulting brain damage could be very severe. I was left reeling with the news and completely numb."

"After being in a coma for two weeks, Tanya miraculously awoke and initially seemed quite bright. She had a vague memory she had a daughter and recognised me and her sister and at that point I thought the nightmare was over. Little did I know it had only just begun."

"Tanya was discharged from hospital on March 1 and the only rehabilitation she received was a brief period of physiotherapy while she was in hospital. We were offered no aftercare or further support, we were just told to go back to our normal life. What I did not realise at that point is that life would never be normal again.

"Once home, the full extent of Tanya's disabilities became apparent. She has both short-term and long-term memory loss, no recollection of her life before her injury or even the clothes or food she likes. She is not safe to go out on her own as she will not remember how she got there or how to get home."

"To make matters worse, this was not the full extent of Tanya's problems. Because of the surgery that saved her life it was likely that further aneurysms could develop. In March she had surgery to address aneurysms that had developed. Again we were discharged without any information or support."

"Around this time I found out about Headway Essex. For the first time in over a year since Tanya's brain haemorrhage I finally saw a light in this dark place we have been for so long. At last I found someone who knew exactly what I was going through and could offer some help."

"We now have a community support worker who is working with us and organised a joint assessment with social services, helping to explain the specific problems we are experiencing and getting the right support in place. Before his help it was a complete waste of time as they were completely unaware of the effects of brain injury and the danger that Tanya was in."

"We are now getting help from an occupational therapist and Tanya is receiving physiotherapy for her arm and hand that she has had restricted use of since her injury."

"The support worker has also helped to ensure that we get the correct benefits that we are entitled to as Tanya is unable to return to work. In addition, we are working on strategies to help to compensate for her memory problems. This is all positive for Tanya."

"She cannot remember her past life so she does not miss it, but for me life is very difficult. Tanya is here with me but she is completely different and I miss the old Tanya so much."

"It is impossible for me to explain the trauma that I have been through since that day our lives changed forever. It is like going through a car crash that never actually ends, but at last I can see some hope that things can get better."

"The most important thing is knowing I am not alone and having Headway's support makes me feel safer."

Court to decide over extension to traveller ban

Hearing date has been set for December

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE date has been set for a High Court hearing on the town-wide injunction to prevent unauthorised encampments in Harlow.

The case has been listed for Wednesday, December 16, when a decision will be made as to whether Harlow Council and Essex County Council's ground-breaking interim injunction will become a final injunction.

The application and associated legal papers have been published on both councils' websites and next week these will be posted at the locations the councils want to protect.

The injunction application seeks the same protection as the interim injunction and would ban 35 named persons from setting up unauthorised encampments on any land in Harlow.

It also seeks to protect 321 vulnerable sites including parks and playgrounds, previously occupied sites, highway verges, schools, cycle tracks and private land identified by both councils.

The range and length of time the injunction is in force will be decided by the High Court. The interim injunction remains in force until a further decision is made by the High Court.

In March 2015, the two local authorities joined forces to apply for a town-wide ban after Harlow was blighted with 109 different unauthorised encampments over an 18-month period.

Disruption

Concerns raised by residents and businesses over damage to public spaces, fly-tipping, human waste, anti-social behaviour and the daily disruption to people's lives and livelihoods caused by persistent encampments will be reflected in the evidence presented to the High Court.

Since the interim injunction has been in force four unauthorised encampments have set up with each one moving out of Harlow within 24 hours.

Harlow Council leader Jon Clempner said: "In responding to the concerns of residents and businesses we have put together the very best case we can. However, the final decision is very much in a judge's hands."

"This injunction is not – and never has been – about persecuting any particular group of people or their way of life."

"Although the issue of persistent unauthorised encampments continues in other places, I am not sure any other area in the country has ever seen the same level of unauthorised encampments we did for such a long period in a geographical area the size of Harlow."

Cllr Roger Hirst, Essex County Council's cabinet member for transport, planning and environment, said: "This is not about attacking travellers, it is about resisting unlawful activity, standing up for the local community and ensuring Harlow remains a place people are proud to call home."

Charity's cheque mates

A CHEQUE for £1,000 has been presented to West Essex Mind by Harlow Running Club.

The money was raised at the club's Harlow 10 event in September which was supported by sporting goods chain Decathlon.

The proportion of the proceeds of the event were donated to Mind and a cheque for £1,000 was presented to the Bush Fair charity last Wednesday.

Alison Wilson, chief executive of West Essex Mind, said the work would help them support local people.

"It will enable us to continue our work of reaching out to people who are affected by mental ill health," she said. "The ways in which we use donations such as this are provision of bursaries for local people who need financial assistance to access counselling and supporting costs related to self help social activities."

Halfon backs proposals to reform online surveillance

PROPOSED reforms to internet surveillance, which hands the police more online control, have been backed by Robert Halfon MP.

Home Secretary Theresa May announced last Wednesday that greater surveillance powers would be provided with the draft investigatory powers bill.

The draft bill gives police and security services access to every UK citizen's use of the internet without any judicial checks.

Harlow MP Mr Halfon said the bill will help to protect from "significant threats to our national security" found online.

"Terrorism from extreme Islamists is on the rise, cyber-crime is ever increasing and paedophiles and others are using the dark side of the internet like never before," he said.

"A few years ago I would have taken a more libertarian stance. However, I now believe the threats against us are so great that we have to do everything possible to defeat terrorism and criminal activity at its source."

He added: "Of course individual civil liberties have to be safeguarded. But I believe that the new measures announced by Theresa May strike a right balance between safeguarding our security and safeguarding our freedoms."

Mr Halfon praised the draft bill for placing "strict controls on law enforcement's ability to access internet connection records."

Sign up early for Race for Life and it will cost just £10

WHILE most of us are preparing for Christmas, organisers of the Harlow Race for Life are already looking ahead to next May.

Entry for the popular Cancer Research UK fundraiser in Harlow Town Park is now open, with women of all ages encouraged to register for either the 5km and 10km events.

This year's race raised more than £110,000 after nearly 1,800 women took part. Now organisers of the 2016 event are hoping to top that figure by getting even more involved.

Pleased

"I'm so pleased with how much our Harlow ladies have raised," said Courtney Culverhouse, event manager for Race for Life in Essex.

"I want to say a heartfelt thank you from Cancer Research UK to all who took part and supported this year.

"I urge anyone who has not yet returned their sponsorship to do so as soon as possible, so that our doctors, nurses and scientists can make strides forward in research."

The 2016 Race For Life will take place on Sunday, May 16. A special early bird registration fee of £10 will last until the end of this month.

Peter warms up for sub-zero challenge

Taking part in Arctic fundraiser to help plight of migrants

SNOW JOKE: Peter Vandenberg is preparing for his Arctic trip

William Mata

will@amatations.co.uk

TEMPERATURES of minus 30 degrees will be the least of the problems for a man attempting an icy charity challenge.

Peter Vandenberg, 48, of Daventry, Harlow, is part of a team of four who will complete two days of freezing activities in the Arctic Circle in Sweden.

Teams will compete in a 35km husky sled race, ice fishing, orienteering, fire building and a 25km ski race.

"At the moment I'm feeling quite worried," said Mr Vandenberg, who works as a principal developer for London firm Simply Business.

"It is going to be physically and mentally demanding with the temperatures, and the endurance aspects.

"I'm most worried about the team aspect as we'll have to support each other and maintain a good rapport through some difficult tasks."

Alongside eight of his colleagues Mr Vandenberg will fly out to Stockholm on Friday, December 4.

The team will travel north into Sweden before splitting into two teams of four to take part in the challenges over the following two days.

Bur Mr Vandenberg is not putting himself through the torment for nothing as the Simply Business teams are combining their efforts in the battle to help the migration crisis.

"Simply Business support the work of Save the Children," added Mr Vandenberg.

"It was an easy choice as we see the continuous plight of migrants and the situation will be amplified in the cold winter weather."

"The migrant crisis taking place all over Europe at the moment is devastating, and there are more displaced vulnerable young people needing our help than ever right now."

The great eight has set an ambitious target of raising £15,000 from the challenge, with expenses being covered by Simply Business.

Mr Vandenberg said: "I am amazed and humbled to have already raised so much."

"I hope people continue to dig deep into their pockets to support us."

You can donate to the challenge by visiting: www.justgiving.com/Arctic-Biathlon15.

Family raise £5,000 in memory of popular Anne

IN MEMORY: Anne's family

A FAMILY raised more than £5,000 for charity by walking across Norfolk in memory of a beloved wife and mother.

Anne Phillips, who was a popular employee of Harlow Asda, died in June from bone marrow cancer Myeloma.

In her memory, husband Roy, stepson David and eight members of her family raised £5,214.35 for charity Myeloma UK by completing a three-day, 46-mile walk from Hunstanton to Cromer, along a coastal path.

David said: "It was difficult, but it went really well, there were some fun terrains to walk across."

"Everyone was enthusiastic but that waned a bit when it got tough as there are some varying levels of fitness in our family."

"We are supporters of Tottenham Hotspur, but we said if we raised the target we would do part of the walk in Arsenal shirts."

"It wasn't my finest hour, but we did it and it's all for a good cause," he added.

Saturn's spectacular lights show

THE Northern Lights, or aurora borealis, are an amazing sight when they appear in the night sky.

They happen when huge amounts of energy from the Sun hit the Earth's magnetic fields, pushing electricity to the north and south poles.

But Earth is not alone in experiencing these spectacular light shows. They can be seen on other planets in the Solar System too.

Scientists at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) in America have been able to confirm that some of our closest neighbouring planets such as Jupiter and Saturn have their own auroras.

However, they are slightly different from Earth's because their atmospheres and poles are different.

In brief

Marking anniversary with book workshops

HARLOW: The anniversary of an influential children's novel was marked with celebrations at Harlow Library.

Lewis Carroll's classic Alice's Adventures in Wonderland was explored by a new generation during the half-term holiday.

Family workshops were held throughout the week while Harlow artist Sarah Bracey staged a Mad Hatter's tea party.

Essex County Council helped stage the month-long events series around the county.

Pupils visit the docks

BURNT MILL: A trip to a docking station was a eureka moment for young scientists at a Harlow secondary school.

Year 9 and 10 students from Burnt Mill Academy in First Avenue attended the Essex Chemistry at Work event at Essex's Tilbury Docks.

The group learned how science, technology, engineering and maths can impact their future careers.

School soar to county victory

Stewards team wins Quadcopter Challenge

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE sky was no limit for a group of students who created gravity defying machines for the county-wide Quadcopter Challenge.

Schools from all over Essex were invited by Harlow-based Raytheon UK to create the flying device. Two Harlow secondary schools competed in the final of the inaugural challenge.

Stewards Academy, in Parnall Road, emerged victorious, finishing ahead of Burnt Mill Academy in First Avenue, Tabor Academy from Braintree and The Boswells School in Chelmsford.

A whole day of challenges were laid on at Stow Maries Great War Aerodrome in Chelmsford to test the quadcopters for innovation, speed, agility and accuracy.

Suzanne Jude, head of strategy and STEM at Raytheon UK, said the challenges were designed to promote careers in the STEM subjects of science, technology, engineering and mathematics.

"Companies like Raytheon UK are leading the way by inspiring the next generation into these careers while growing the UK's engineering capabilities nationally and regionally," she said.

"Whether it's working with schools or helping to create

VICTORS: The winning team from Stewards Academy are presented with their trophy by Suzanne Jude and Roy Donelson from Raytheon courses at universities, Raytheon UK is actively helping to create a future workforce that's not only employable but also has the right skill set to set them on a course for success and help to position the UK at the forefront of competitiveness."

Each member of the Stewards team can now look forward to a flight in a classic Tiger Moth biplane as their prize for winning the challenge.

Stewards entered two teams and their combined scores in the obstacle course added together made them the overall winners.

The boy's team comprised William Payne, Filip Kusnir, Shiv Sharma and James Clarke who entered with their quadcopter called Apollo 13 after the lunar rocket.

The girls were represented by Katy Briant, Anita Ogedengbe, Molly Gallaway and Bethan Rumsey, who named their machine MAKAM.

World view for airport art

TRAVELLERS from all over the world will see the artwork of two students displayed at Stansted Airport.

The car park entrance tunnels at the airport are now decorated with the works of former Harlow College designers Angela Padilla, 27, and Jade Shaw, 32.

Angela, pictured, studied a foundation degree in graphic design at the college before moving to the University of Cambridge where she is now in her final year.

She said: "I'm really happy, especially as I've made my family proud of me."

"I put a lot of myself into the design."

Jade, 22, who studied BTEC graphic design, said: "It's really exciting that my work is displayed at Stansted Airport and it's quite overwhelming that so many people will see it."

Nursery marks Sandwich Day

CHILDREN tucked in to a lunchtime favourite by baking bread on Sandwich Day.

The on-site chef at Kiddi Caru, in Kiln Lane, Harlow, helped the children to bake bread before they were given free-reign over choosing fillings.

As well as learning about the journey of bread from kitchen to stomach, they also discovered the creativity involved in cooking.

Nursery manager Vania Farinha said: "Not only did they

TASTY: Children learned all about bread learn about how bread is made but they also were able to get creative and try different combinations of fillings.

"This was a lovely way to help the children to explore different food tastes and textures, and resulted in some fabulous, never before seen sandwich varieties."

What to do if you find yourself having to deal with a stray cat

UNFORTUNATELY we don't have the resources to collect healthy strays but you can help by following the advice on our website. If you have concerns about a sick or injured stray cat you can call the emergency line on 0300 1234 999.

If the cat is not friendly and approachable, it may be feral. These cats are able to look after themselves and so long as they are healthy they will live happily outside.

We support the trapping and neutering of feral cats where local charities have the capacity to do so. If the cat is approachable and friendly it may be a stray that belongs to someone. If a stray is not feral the best thing to do is try to find its owner. Cats roam over a wide area so ask around to see if anyone knows who it belongs to.

If you can get close enough to put a collar on it, then download one of our paper cat collars, but take precautions when approaching the cat and fixing the collar. You can also download and print a found poster.

To find out more about the needs of cats, pop into or call our advice centre for help.

■ THIS is Misty. She is only about 12 weeks old and we believe she was dumped in Sainsbury's car park.

She and must have been wandering around for a few days. Misty was spotted by a member of the public after she climbed into the wheel arch of a parked car. She became very scared and it took some time to get her out. Misty was very dirty, covered in oil and hungry but has suffered no lasting injuries from her ordeal. Misty is now ready for adoption.

Harlow Advice Centre

Free advice service for people who are struggling with debt

MANY of us find it difficult to meet all our outgoings at this time of year. Gas and electricity bills are higher in the winter and we often spend more than we intend to in the run-up to Christmas.

Harlow Advice Centre is working with Harlow's Credit Union on a National Lottery funded project aimed at helping people who are falling into debt. The SMART Advice project offers money management and specialist debt advice.

Harlow's provides one-to-one and group sessions on budgeting and ways to increase income and reduce expenditure. Harlow Advice Centre provides specialist benefits, debt and housing advice. The service is free and confidential.

If you are struggling to pay bills and getting deeper into debt, pay your priority debts first. These include rent and mortgage payments, council tax, fines and other debts where the consequences of not paying are far more serious than not meeting your non-priority debts such as unsecured loans and credit card arrears.

If you receive letters from a debt collection agency it is important to remember they don't have any more powers than the original company you owe money to. The letters are often threatening in tone but they are not bailiffs and do not have the powers of bailiffs. Most are willing to come to an affordable arrangement and freeze any interest or charges on your account if you are in financial difficulty.

It can be tempting to approach high interest payday lenders when money is tight without realising there are other options such as lower interest or no-interest loans and grants available to some, including Social Fund payments and loans from the Department for Work and Pensions and Essex Living Fund grants.

If you are struggling to make affordable arrangements, Harlow Advice Centre's money adviser can help you to identify the best way forward. To contact Harlow Advice Centre email admin@harlowac.org.uk or ring (01279) 704002. To contact Harlow's Credit Union email admin@harlowscu.co.uk or ring (01279) 451234.

■ Harlow Advice Service, Central Library, Cross Street, Harlow. Telephone (01279) 704002. Monday noon-2pm, Tuesday 10am-noon, Thursday and Friday 10am-2pm.

LET'S HANG ON

Harlow Playhouse
Saturday, November 21 (7.30pm) £24

Get ready for a musical journey through the history of one of the most successful bands of all time - Frankie Valli and The Four Seasons. Featuring an anthology of the band's hit songs, you are almost certain to find yourself on your feet and dancing before the night is over.

'The pressure is off and we're free to enjoy it'

WE'RE not as young as we used to be," laughs Collapsed Lung guitarist Anthony Chapman. Back in the day we used to just kind of wing it, but now we're having to practice more than ever."

Collapsed Lung are a band whose first career seemed to finish as it was just getting going.

After just four years together and two albums, the rap-rock group split shortly after the release of Euro 1996 anthem Eat My Goal, which remains their best known song.

But nearly 20 years after, the four-piece have reformed and, says Anthony, they are "better than ever".

"The pressure is off and we're just free to enjoy it now as there is no-one to impress," he said.

"We're not that famous now and we have the freedom to work at our own pace.

"Things have changed so much in 20 years, especially the technology and our songs are now a lot easier to play. I can use an iPad to get some of the effects.

"I think our songs are a lot tighter and a better quality than ever."

Anthony now lives in High Wycombe, but is Harlow through and through. He founded the band in 1992 in the town with guitar player Steve Harcourt and rapper Nihal Arthanayake. They were joined by Jonny Dawe on drums.

The Square is a venue that means a lot to many bands but there are few artists that have a more personal connection to the venue than Collapsed Lung.

"Our sound is very much shaped by Harlow," said Anthony. "I love the town and the longer I live away from Harlow the more protective I become of people who say things against it.

"I'm sure we'd sound different if we were from somewhere more urban like Romford, but coming from Harlow I think leaves us open to a mixture of genres.

"I would never claim to be real hip-hop. I take inspiration from all kinds of music and I could not consider us to be tribal."

He added: "I would consider The Square to be our spiritual home, and it's somewhere where we've played many times.

"I am very much looking forward to the gig. I personally think The Square is the best venue of its size in the country.

"Back in the day I would be encouraging other bands and artists to come down and play. They may have been a bit sceptical if they didn't know a lot about Harlow but once they played they always come back."

Nihal left the band in 1994 and went onto have a career as a DJ for BBC Radio One and presently BBC Asian Network.

He was replaced by Jim Burke and the four-piece kicked on to secure a record deal, releasing debut album Jackpot Goalie in 1995 and the sequel Cooler a year later.

Jim has been back to The Square very recently as alter-ego Mr. B The Gentleman Rhymer whose parodying style of chap-hop and tweed is a world away from the baggy tracksuits of Collapsed Lung.

Mr B. typically raps about cricket and pipe smoking in received pronunciation but is able to drop the act to front Collapsed Lung.

Anthony said: "Jim used to say that he felt like he was dressing up whenever he played as Mr B. but now it's more like he's dressing up when he is playing with Collapsed Lung.

"Whenever he's reading out lyrics he says he can't now not put on the Mr B voice."

The band would like to record new material at some point but at the moment are content with playing concerts here and there.

When they re-grouped full time in 2014, going back to playing signature hit Eat My Goal was a "cringe," according to Anthony, but he said the lads are now happy to give an audience what they want.

"Eat My Goal has a lot of baggage," he said of the song which entered the charts after being the soundtrack to a Coca Cola advert.

"When we started practising again it felt a bit weird, but we are really up for it now and we feel proud of it."

■ Collapsed Lung will play at The Square, Fourth Avenue, Harlow next Saturday (November 28) when they will be supported by The Pre New and Montana Pete. Tickets cost £12 and can be bought from www.the-squareharlow.com/listings

'It's been my dream to write and direct'

THIS year's Christmas performance at Victoria Hall Theatre is a real life fairy tale for director Martin Colton.

In the musical performance of Rapunzel, the heroine is locked away in a tower under the cruel reign of a witch as she waits for a prince to save her.

But for Martin, the chairman of the Old Harlow theatre, Rapunzel represents his own happily ever after.

"It has always been a dream of mine to write and direct the Christmas show," he said. "I have been the director before, but this is the first time I have done both."

It has always been Martin's ambition to direct Harlow Theatre Company's Christmas production but it took some inspiration and encouragement from his children to take the lead.

"Rapunzel is the favourite bedtime story of my seven-year-old daughter Chloe," he said. "It was Chloe who gave me the idea and I was encouraged by my 10-year-old son Alex."

"It was then that I started to sit down and figure out how I was going to do it."

Taking the reins of a Christmas production is a tough task as performances at Victoria Hall run almost daily from Thursday, December 17 until Sunday, December 27.

There will be evening performances every night apart from Christmas Day and Boxing Day, with a sprinkling of matinee performances on December 19-20 and again on December 27.

Planning a fun performance for families right the way through the holidays was a tough task for Martin. However, he was able to draw inspiration from the strength of the story and the little girl who had asked him to re-tell it on stage.

"Rapunzel has had a new lease of life through the Disney film Tangled," he said. "Before Frozen the film of the moment had been Tangled, so it is a story that children are familiar with. It is a relevant and popular story."

"I wanted to re-tell the original Brother's Grimm version but add in some new and well-loved musical numbers for family fun."

"It is a real family play that I think adults and children are going to love."

The story follows Rapunzel, kidnapped as a child by the wicked witch Gothel but rescued by the handsome prince who promises to show her the world.

However, their plans are forced to change when Gothel seeks revenge and banishes Rapunzel to the Land of Eternal Winter. The Prince, his page and Rapunzel's cat Pandora, ever pursued by the witch's evil Goblins, set off on an adventure to find her.

For Martin there was only ever one choice to play the leading lady and he set off on his own quest to land Harlow Theatre Company actress Lisa Gould for the title role.

"When I was writing and planning the play I always had Lisa in mind," he said. "She fit the part perfectly."

"I had worried that she may not be able to fit the role into her plans, but it is amazing to have her on board."

She will be opposite Stefan Mullard, who plays The Prince after his lead role in Harlow Theatre Company's production of RENT.

The rest of the adult cast will be formed of Harlow Theatre Company members while the younger ensemble have come from Harlow drama school CATS.

Stefan and Lisa are busy rehearsing for the show and will turn on the Old Harlow Christmas lights to promote the production.

"The Christmas performance is a non-profit production and all proceeds will help to keep the theatre running for the next year," said Martin.

"As a theatre we depend on ticket sales for the future of the theatre and I'm pleased to say that in our 20th year of performance the tickets are selling faster than ever before."

"We've already nearly sold-out the matinee shows and I would advise anyone thinking of coming to book now to avoid disappointment."

■ Harlow Theatre Company will perform Rapunzel at the Victoria Hall Theatre from December 17-27. Tickets cost £10-12 and are on sale now from www.ticketsource.co.uk/boxoffice/select/BnkaPYIIWhtc

An evening that is sure to raise your spirits

ONE of the country's top spiritualist mediums will be returning to Harlow later this month.

Former hairdresser Steve Holbrook visits theatres and hotels around the country, demonstrating his ability and passing on messages of reassurance to people who have lost their loved ones.

Steve said he was only five years old when he became aware that life existed beyond the grave after waking up one night to find five soldiers marching through his bedroom.

"This was very unnerving experience but it was to give me an early glimpse of what was to come and now it's as natural as breathing to me," he said.

However, Steve is mainly clairaudient – in other words, instead of seeing any kind of visual imagery he hears voices, which are sometimes in his head and sometimes as if a person is standing next to him whispering in his ear.

These voices can be crystal clear or they can be muffled, but either way he knows they are the voices of people who have passed on from this life to the next.

Steve worked in a busy hairdressing salon in Leeds city centre and believes the years he spent having personal contact with his customers provided the stimulation for his ability to hear the voices of spirits, enabling him to pass on messages from their loved one.

"I often wonder if they kept coming back for my ability as a hair stylist or the possibility that they might receive a message from a relative who had passed away," he said.

One of his best friends is Jane

MacDonald, co-presenter on ITV's Loose Women, who he first met at a spiritualist church many years ago.

He predicted she would appear on television as part of a cruise entertainment documentary, a prediction which came true a year later when she starred in BBC1's The Cruise. She has since dedicated her autobiography to Steve, calling him her inspiration and guru.

Over the years he has raised tens of thousands of pounds for charities, including £50,000 for his local hospice, £5,000 for Macmillan Cancer Support and PACT, a charity that helps terminally ill children and their parents across the country.

■ Steve Holbrook will be appearing at the Park Inn in Southern Way, Harlow, on Monday, November 30. Doors open at 6.30pm and the show starts at 7.30m. Tickets cost £17 and are available by calling 08447 404526.

PUTTING your pets first is what Kew Vets is well known for, but with Christmas just around the corner it is reassuring to know that this caring practice will be open 24/7 throughout the festive season.

Eat, drink and be merry might be good advice for humans but for our pets it can spell disaster. The same goes for celebratory festive fireworks, which can cause untold stress.

Kew Vets is the only vets in Harlow to be open throughout the holiday period so in the unfortunate event you do need a vet this is the place to call.

Based at Wych Elm in Harlow, the practice is headed by Jerry Kew, who qualified from the Royal Veterinary College London in 1967.

The practice is renowned for its friendly, caring approach and has a loyal following of customers from a wide area. Jerry is well known in the local area and has more than 40 years of experience in animal medicine.

There are also Kew Vets branches in Thorley, Sawbridgeworth and Ongar.

As well as the Christmas holidays, Kew Vets is open six days a week and for emergencies only on Sundays. It is also the only veterinary practice in Harlow with a nurse on site at all times, so your pet will always be cared for closely throughout its treatment.

Staff at Kew Vets are friendly and caring and always willing to go the extra mile. They understand how much a family pet means to its owners and will always ensure that every aspect of their well being is catered for.

Kew Vets offers free flea and worm consultations, a free weight clinic, general health checks, neutering, puppy and kitten advice, dentistry and more.

There are both X-ray and ultrasound facilities on site to enable the team to diagnose a vast range of conditions including fractures, tumours, pyometra, heart failure and gastrointestinal disorders as quickly as possible.

The Sawbridgeworth branch of Kew Vets, in Bell Street, holds puppy parties on the last Wednesday of each month. The events, for socialising your puppy with other dogs, are free of charge but you must book in advance. For further details call (01279) 723909.

'I'm proud I can crack people up'

AS a dad who can tell jokes, Adam Bloom is something of a rare breed and his unconventional comedy style has won him many fans. But he is also distinguishable for his style of comedy in which he prefers to be observational rather than studious in his preparation.

Tomorrow (Friday) he will share a bill with Pete Firman, Ian Moore, George Egg and compere Dan Evans for the latest of the Live @ The Playhouse comedy nights.

Adam describes the line-up as "fantastic", having worked with prop comedian George on several occasions and said his hyper style of presentation will perfectly complement the deadpan delivery of Ian Moore.

"The line-up is fantastic, there's a real great mixture," said Adam. "Me, George and Dan often come as a trio. George is one of the best prop comedians going and although some people can often look down on props, he is very well respected."

"Pete on the other hand is really a magician while Ian is very deadpan."

Adam, 44, is widely regarded as one of Britain's most inventive stand-ups and has appeared on various panel shows including Mock the Week, Russell Howard's Good News and Never Mind the Buzzcocks.

He has also performed at festivals in Australia and South Africa and has been part of the Canadian Just for Laughs Tour. But with such a glittering CV, does performing on a four-man bill at Harlow Playhouse seem like a step down?

"I have done my own thing in the past but I find it can get a bit lonely," he said. "It is nice to have other guys to chat to, even if my solo show is one hour 40, compared to the 20 minutes as part of this."

"When you're touring by yourself the only person you might speak to all day is the sound technician. Some comedians will pay a support act £500 a night for, essentially, company."

"Stand-up is fragile and a venue can make or break the performance. My favourite is the Comedy Store in Leicester Square, which has the seats all closely bound together."

"You like audiences to be very close together so they can all react as one. I've played some venues that have been like a rock concert."

Adam has wanted to be a comedian since he was nine and said a revelation came to him when he watched Harry Hill perform.

It was then he had the idea for his own style of comedy, putting his "unusual mind" to good use.

"I have always been able to make people laugh just by describing things. I feel kind of proud that I'm able to crack people up just by giving my view of the world. I'll make an effort to observe some things about Harlow as I walk up from the station."

He adds: "The really successful comedians can really do their homework but I tend to just use what I have seen. I'm not a topical comedian, I don't tend to joke about what I've seen on TV."

■ Tickets for Live @ The Playhouse cost £16.50 and are available from the box office on (01279) 431945 or they can be booked online at www.harlowplayhouse.com.

REVIEW

Production paints a heartening portrait of artists' lives

FRIDA AND DIEGO MOOT HOUSE PLAYERS

DRAMA, dance, music and art were imaginatively brought together in this absorbing and sensitive production.

Tony Broadwick's play charts the lives and turbulent relationship of Mexican artists Frida Kahlo and Diego Rivera, but director Michael Branwell brought a colourful and vibrant dimension to the production through the addition of dance.

For as tiny crippled Frida spoke emotionally of her lost hopes and dreams, a young dancer from Harlow Ballet was also on stage, giving the artist the dazzling movement and agility she yearned to possess.

And as the mercurial, womanising Diego talked of his career and ambitions, his passion was echoed by the sensuous movements of a salsa dancer.

Rosalind Barron gave an assured and emotional performance as the physically damaged Frida, seriously injured in a road accident as a schoolgirl: teenage dancer Sophie Price portrayed her as fun-loving, light-hearted and amorous, yet not afraid to challenge Diego's first wife Lupe Marin (a feisty Catriona Macleay).

As Diego, Kevin Smith was determined and single-minded: as his alter-ego, Barry Gray danced with fluidity and passion, revealing the emotion beneath the artist's stubborn outlook.

Throughout the production, Sophie and Barry were joined by Beth Allen, Millie Ashdown, Chelsea Hammond and Maria Kruger to perform series of stunning dances, illustrating milestones in the artists' relationship.

The atmospheric music for these dances was recorded in Baja Lempa, El Salvador, by the charity Music For Hope, which works to help alleviate poverty following the civil war in the South American country. Colourful and passionate, it provided a perfect accompaniment to the lively dance routines.

Likewise, examples of Frida and Diego's imaginative, thought-provoking work were projected onto a screen at the rear of the stage, creating a vibrant backdrop to the action and giving an insight into the lives and passions of the artists.

It was heartening to see Moot House Players and Harlow Ballet – two of the town's most accomplished arts organisations – coming together to stage such an engaging production.

A collection held at the end of the three performances raised a total of £300 for Music For Hope.

Shining a light on differently abled artists

THE debate over why learning disabled artists continue to be under-represented on stage, in art galleries and at festivals took centre stage at the third Creative Minds conference featuring Harlow-based group Razed Roof and Harlow Playhouse director Scott Ramsey.

Hosted by DanceEast – an Arts Council England National Portfolio Organisation – the conference brought together people from across the industry to discuss why this continues to be the case.

Led by learning disabled artists and performers, Creative Minds encourages debate and discussion among those who set the artistic agenda, from artists and venues through to arts organisations and critics.

The aim is to unpick the complexities that surround this area and to identify and address the barriers between learning disabled arts and the wider arts world.

Scott, who sat on the conference's panel and who has championed Razed Roof and their work, explained: "It's very easy to feel secluded as an artist, and as a differently-abled person.

"Put those together and the benefits of getting together to discuss what we do and how we do it is very important. It's also one of the few opportunities for artists, educationalists and venue managers to get together and share."

Harlow Playhouse is currently programming work which is both accessible and also boosts artists' opportunities.

"We try to co-commission a main stage show from Razed Roof every year, and we are currently supporting them with shows in 2016 and 2017," said Scott.

"We've also successfully secured funding for the next year to support championing better practice and opportunities in small to mid-scale touring venues, working closely with Hertford Theatre.

"Our next partnership project, Backstage In Biscuit Land, was featured on Live From Television Centre on BBC4 on Sunday night, and will be touring in the spring around the UK."

So does he think attitudes are changing in the industry and how is this being achieved?

"There's been a real sea-change in the last couple of years, with much more mainstream work coming through," he said.

"There was also a big change at the Edinburgh Festival this year, which is effectively the industry's main trade show, with a lot more embedded work from differently-abled artists.

"But there's a long way to go and it can feel like an uphill struggle alongside sluggish audience development.

"Over time we want to change people's perceptions about what theatre can be and that's also within the differently-abled communities themselves."

Gus Garside, national co-ordinator for Creative Minds, said: "We know that the work created by learning disabled artists and performers is not significantly represented in the wider arts world and it is only by having an accessible discussion between learning disabled artists and performers and representatives of the wider arts world that we can begin to understand why that is.

"This year is the first time we will have a panel chaired by and including learning disabled artists and performers and featuring representatives of the wider arts world.

"The latter will be challenged to take part in the discussion bravely and honestly to highlight what they perceive the barriers to be.

"We feel it is only by candidly discussing the barriers that we can begin to remove them."

Hunger Games: Mockingjay Part 2

ACTION SCI-FI: (12A) 137 minutes
Director: Francis Lawrence
Starring: Jennifer Lawrence, Josh Hutcherson, Liam Hemsworth, Woody Harrelson

AT A critical juncture in The Hunger Games: Mockingjay – Part 2, Woody Harrelson's grizzled mentor Haymitch Abernathy pays tribute to his battle-scarred protégée, Katniss Everdeen (Jennifer Lawrence).

"I'll say this Katniss, you don't disappoint," he beams. Similar praise could almost be lavished on the concluding chapter of the dystopian saga, based on the novels by Suzanne Collins.

This bruising battle royale remains faithful to the books and largely justifies the decision to cleave the grand finale in two like the final Harry Potter and Twilight outings.

A nail-biting subterranean set-piece, pitting the rebels against a horde of snarling creatures called mutts, is a thing of terrifying beauty reminiscent of Ellen Ripley's hellish encounters with aliens.

And Danny Strong and Peter Craig's muscular script doesn't shy away from

DEVESTATING FINALE: Jennifer Lawrence reprises her role as Katniss Everdeen

Katniss' anguished face as she recovers from a skirmish with brainwashed Hunger Games competitor Peeta (Josh Hutcherson).

The unified Districts are preparing for an assault on the Capitol and Katniss must lead the charge, guided by District 13's crusading President, Alma Coin (Julianne Moore), gamesmaker Plutarch Heavensbee (Philip Seymour Hoffman) and lovestruck childhood friend Gale Hawthorne (Liam Hemsworth).

Intelligence reveals that President Snow has planted booby traps known as pods around the ruined city in order to annihilate the rebels before they reach his fortified mansion. Katniss, Peeta, Gale and other valiant allies including Hunger Games victor Finnick (Sam Claflin) venture behind enemy lines to launch a covert strike on Snow.

The Hunger Games: Mockingjay – Part 2 is a fitting and relentlessly grim conclusion, distinguished by breathless action sequences that recall the first film back in 2012.

Lawrence delivers another emotionally wrought and beautifully measured performance, torn between Hutcherson and Hemsworth's rival suitors for Katniss' hardened heart.

Damon Smith

the moral conundrum of conflict for a generation whose childhood innocence has been stained with blood.

If Mockingjay – Part 1 dragged its feet, trading glancing verbal blows between Katniss and Machiavellian warmonger President Snow (Donald Sutherland), the concluding salvo lands one devastating blow after another as simmering animosity ignites full-blown slaughter.

Without any fanfare, Part 2 opens on

Neutrals should not be underestimated. Villa Nova shows here how to use a muted grey colour to create a timeless children's bedroom. From www.villanova.co.uk 01623 756 699

Timeless children's bedrooms

You can give your kids the room they want without resorting to the usual clichés

DECORATING your children's bedroom is a notoriously tricky area. We all know how quickly children grow up and how their hobbies and interests change from week-to-week.

The argument between loud cartoon wallpaper versus a neutral colour is a struggle every household has. But, what about meeting in the middle?

If you're redecorating or even renovating a kid's bedroom, it's time to think outside of the box. Beyond the pinks and blues there are so many other ways to decorate children's bedrooms to keep them up to date.

People can often be guilty of steering towards magical fairies or comical cartoon wallpaper when decorating children's bedrooms, but there's no need to be quite so clichéd.

When choosing wallpaper you should always consider the longevity of the print – but of course keep the fun! Many wallpaper manufacturers are now adding designs with drawings from classic children's books, and these can instantly make a room feel child-friendly but with a more sophisticated feel.

You could also consider a classic striped print and pick their favourite colours. I find a blue and white colour combination always works great for a boy's bedroom. And for girl's bedrooms try on-trend polka dots to bring the fun back into wallpaper. To remain stylish opt for a soft palette of colours and pick a white or cream backdrop.

If you need a quick fix, a splash of paint is a great start when creating a timeless bedroom. Vibrant colours such as sunflower yellows, rosy reds and fresh greens can provide a refreshing take on children's bedrooms and inject a lot of fun and personality into a room. However, if you're looking for something more classic, pretty pinks and baby blues are still safe options when decorating.

If you're looking for muted colours, new neutrals such as soft beige or driftwood greys are on-trend and are also a great addition to any room. Why not opt for a feature wall and showcase the classic colours among ivory-based walls and let the colours pop. With a plain wall it gives you a great opportunity to really play with accessories such as wall stickers or picture frames.

If there is one thing children love, it is getting involved with the fun and creative side of decorating. If you opt for a neutral wall colour but still want to personalise your child's room, then these are the perfect additions.

Popular trends for children's bedrooms recently have been wall stickers. They offer a fun addition and don't panic, they are not messy! Unlike wallpaper, they are easy to apply and easy to remove; perfect for children who frequently change their mind and likes and dislikes.

There is an extensive list of unusual and personalised stickers that you can pick from with the help of your children. Available from most home décor shops or online retailers such as Ebay, you can pick from fantastical dinosaurs, magical unicorns, superheroes and so on. And if you worried about it looking tacky, mix in some cool contemporary colours and stick to bold prints. For instance, a light grey wall with a graphic spaceship wall sticker could be just the thing for a boy's hideaway.

If you're looking for some more ways to personalise your child's room, look to the accessories. Children love creating dens where they can escape and play in their own world with toy cars or a selection of dolls. Why not help create that atmosphere and drape some delicate canopies over the bed posts to create a castle-esque setting for your little princess, or a den perfect for superhero adventures.

Storage ideas are also a great way of showing off your child's personality in their own room. There are some wonderful storage space ideas such as castle, treehouse or chest-shaped boxes.

Fill them with their own toys, games or teddy bears and you will have created the perfect hideaway for your children.

■ Lesley Taylor is an interior designer, author and full member of the BIDD. www.lesleytaylor.co.uk.

Why not try something different and opt for a refreshing wallpaper in a green tone as pictured here from Osborne and Little. From www.osborneandlittle.com, 020 8812 3000

Going for a song? Not Grimmy's X Factor house

X Factor judge Nick Grimshaw with the contestants at the house in the Cotswolds

THE daddy of all talent contests could be looking for a new home after ITV outbid the BBC to broadcast The Voice.

The fifth series of the Beeb's Saturday night singing competition, which starts in January, will be the last one shown on the channel, which means The X Factor could be up for grabs, and there's speculation that Sky might be interested.

Despite bringing in new judges, The X Factor's ratings have dwindled and recently more people watched Antiques Roadshow than Simon Cowell's once must-see talent contest.

However, there's still plenty of fans keen to find out who'll take the coveted record contract, with the live finals now underway.

Radio 1 DJ Nick Grimshaw a new judge this year, was in shock after one of his proteges, Seann Miley Moore, was sent home along with Kiera Weathers.

Grimmy used this five-bedroom Cotswolds lakeside

The Cotswolds home's interior was designed by Kate Moss property to mentor the six boys, including hopefuls Max Stone and Che Chesterman, and it's now for sale at £2.5m.

His celeb pal Kate Moss used the house as her first interior design project in a new sideline career. The result is colourful 'retro glamour' with handcrafted furniture and art by Jake and Dinos Champan and Damien Hirst.

Built from green oak and natural Cotswold stone, within its own secluded one acre plot of private woodland, The Barnhouse is part of The Lakes development, a secluded community with spa, concierge service and a range of outdoor activities.

The five-bedroom property also has an outdoor pool.

HOT

Who's that next door? Sean Bean!

TOUGH guy Sean Bean regularly turns up on battlefields on TV and film – most recently as Eddard Stark in season one of Game of Thrones.

However, the actor lost a battle with neighbours over plans for a leafy terrace on the roof of his £4m home. They complained 6ft-tall glass screens and big evergreen planters would overlook them and invade their privacy.

The former Bond villain rose to fame playing the dashing captain in the popular Sharpe series and has had a pretty busy and lucrative career since then, with roles in the Lord of the Rings films and plenty of voiceover work.

Bean bought his four-bedroom home in north London's Belsize Park in 1998, and now you can live near the Sheffield-born star as a mews house in the same street has come up for sale at £3.5m. The four-bedroom home in Daleham Mews is set over three floors and has three bathrooms, a guest wc and utility room. The first floor sitting room opens onto a large private roof terrace while on the ground floor there's a large eat-in family kitchen with fireplace and a separate formal dining room.

This exclusive cobbled street was originally built as stables – in fact, properties are still entitled to keep donkeys and horses. And Bean is not the only famous face to have enjoyed living here, as theatre director John Fernald was a resident in the 1950s, while actor Roy Kinnear – father of fellow actor Rory – spent time here during the 1960s.

London home to a racy writer

QUEEN of Steam Jackie Collins had a private life almost as colourful as some of the characters in her raunchy novels.

She was expelled from a private girls' school at 15 after throwing her uniform into the Thames. Then as a young stage singer she appeared alongside the likes of Des O'Connor and reportedly had an affair with Marlon Brando when she was 15 and he was 29. She and sister Joan started appearing in British B movies, but Jackie largely gave up acting in the 1960s.

The novelist, who died of breast cancer in September aged 77, sold more than 500 million copies in 40 countries with her tales of the rich and famous, in a career spanning four decades.

She began writing as a teenager, making up racy stories for her school friends, but hit the big time when her first novel, The World is Full of Married Men, was published in 1968. A scandalous bestseller, it was banned in Australia and branded "disgusting" by romance writer Barbara Cartland.

This tasteful five-bedroom property in St John's Wood was her home in the 1980s with second husband, the gallery and nightclub owner Oscar Lerman, before she moved her family permanently to L.A. It's now on the market for £11.5m.

According to agents Ian Green Residential, there's a big entertaining space and a beautiful 112ft back garden with double garage. It has planning permission to create a lower ground floor side extension and side garage extension.

WHAT'S YOUR EXCUSE?

Hyundai's i30 is systematically knocking over its rivals one by one. The latest model really accelerates its aspirations. Andy Enright reports

This version of the Hyundai i30 launched back in 2012, so it's long overdue for a refresh. At least it is according to Hyundai's clock, a timepiece that seems to run at a different speed to most other car manufacturers.

The Koreans, you see, are going places and they don't intend to hang around. If you're tilting at the best in class, the normal seven-year model life spans just aren't cutting it. Hyundai needs to keep changing, keep improving, keep striving to be better than anyone expects. They'd be forgiven if they came across as a bit chippy, but Hyundai are anything but. They're just earnest about being the best they can be.

So, what's the deal with this latest i30 then? True, it doesn't look a great deal different to the car that rolled into dealers in 2012 and gave Ford, Vauxhall and even Volkswagen a fit of the conniptions, but look a little closer and it has improved in myriad ways. It's even got a sporty turbocharged model at the top of the range.

The idea of a sporty Hyundai hatchback would have had us rolling in the aisles a few years back but we've seen sister company Kia debut the genuinely credible pro_cee'd GT model, so it was about time Hyundai got with the program. The i30 Turbo does what it says on the tin, offering a 186PS turbo motor that will zip it to 62mph in 8 seconds and on to 136mph, so it's not really hot. You could probably dip your elbow in it and feed it to a baby. Hyundai trumpets its Nurburgring-developed suspension setup, and it also gets bigger wheels and tyres and more direct steering (2.78 turns lock-to-lock).

Of more relevance to the vast majority of i30 buyers are the revised petrol and diesel engines that make up the rest of the range. Buyers will have a choice of two diesel options – a 1.6-litre engine available in either 110 or 136ps outputs. Those who prefer petrol can choose either a 1.4-litre 100PS unit or a 1.6-litre 120PS engine as well as the Turbo model. The 1.4-litre engine is a fresh design, 14kg lighter than its predecessor and more efficient too. The 1.6-litre diesel and the 1.6-litre petrol GDI engines are available with a seven-speed dual-clutch transmission (7DCT). This has replaced the previous six-speed torque-converter automatic and improves both acceleration and economy.

The post-2012 i30 is a car that has matured a lot from the original i30 and it's a really assured piece of design. Hyundai resisted the urge to go over the top in order to show what they could do and has instead created something that's quite discreet and classy. The latest model tweaks the look a little with a few minor changes such as the slightly more assertive hexagonal grille. There are also some different alloy wheel designs in both 16 and 17-inch diameters and three additional body colours: Polar White, Orange Caramel and Jet Black.

The interior design is neat with plenty of metallic and silver painted finishes on display, the centre console not looking unlike that of contemporary Ford models with sprouting air vents. Space is plentiful for the rear seat occupants and the 378-litre boot ought to be big enough for most requirements. Build quality seems very good with a lot of attention paid to materials, refinement and panel fit.

Pricing start at just over the £15,000 point, which is par for the course in the Focus segment. That sum gets you the entry-level petrol 1.4. Diesels start from just over £17,000. Hyundai isn't holding back when it comes to equipment. There's dual-zone climate control will ensure a comfortable environment for all occupants during long journeys, and the addition of a panoramic sunroof provides increased natural light within the cabin. The panoramic sunroof has been designed to open fully or tilt open, offering passengers flexibility. A 7-inch touch screen sits in the centre console and keyless go, leather and a very clever sat nav system are offered. The Turbo gets sports front seats, a sports instrument cluster and contrasting red details on the steering wheel, gear knob and door trims.

Safety hasn't been overlooked and the i30 features ESP (Electronic Stability Program), ABS (anti-lock braking system), VSM (Vehicle Stability Management) and Emergency Stop Signal. In terms of passive safety, the i30 is fitted with six airbags as standard – front, side and curtain – while a driver's knee airbag is optional. I was intrigued to read of Hyundai's 'Land Departure Warning System', presumably to give drivers the heads up when they're about to drive off a jetty. Actually just somebody with fat fingers; it ought to be 'Lane'.

The introduction of a bunch of new engine technology has kept Hyundai right on the pace of the class best when it comes to efficiency. The i30's range of engines has long been 100 per cent Euro6 compliant and carbon dioxide emissions are as low as most rivals can manage. The 1.4-litre petrol engine gets some creditable figures, returning a combined fuel consumption of 50mpg and CO2 emissions of 138g/km. The 'Blue Drive' 1.6 CRDi 110PS models do much better though, in hatch form putting out a CO2 reading of just 94g/km. At 'Blue Drive' level, fuel saving technologies include Integrated Stop & Go (ISG), low rolling-resistance tyres, an alternator management system (AMS) and a drag-reducing 'active air flap' in the front grille, similar to the technology on the Ford Focus.

Verdict: If you're wondering why the Volkswagen Golf, the Ford Focus or the Peugeot 308 are so good these days, the reason is the Hyundai i30. Yes, really. These massive car manufacturers are all scared witless about the unrelenting progress of the Hyundai hatch and the potential it has for kicking huge chunks out of their bottom line. This latest model doesn't show any sign of a deviation in the trend line.

Yes, it is a 'mere' facelift, but this is so much more than a grille, lights and bumpers job. The engines are impressive, the Turbo model underscores the extension of the i30's brand equity upmarket and everything is tuned and fettled to be a few per cent better. While it's not possible for Hyundai to make the vaulting gains it has done to be where it is, the i30 shows that improving incrementally still puts it on collision course with the very best cars in its class.

Manorcourt launches care-at-home service for the Broxbourne community

Linda Sharkey, Regional Recruitment Advisor, Manorcourt Homecare, Unit 4 Meridian House,
New Nazeing Road, Broxbourne, Hertfordshire, EN10 6SX or email linda.sharkey@manorcourtcare.co.uk

Manorcourt Homecare has announced the opening of a brand new homecare branch in Broxbourne. The branch will provide a range of care-at-home services to people located in the area including Broxbourne, Hoddeson, Cheshunt, Turnford, Wormley, and Waltham Cross.

Via the new branch, people in the local community now have access to a range of homecare services, including help with personal care needs, meal calls, domestic visits, accompanying services to appointments, medication management, night time care, in addition to providing sitting services to help carers who support a family member at home, through to live-in care.

Manorcourt Homecare's services are designed to help people who require assistance on either a regular or temporary basis, and to provide as little or as much support as is needed, for as long as required.

Gail Lamoon, Manager of the Broxbourne branch said: "We are a community-based company, which is here to help assist people with help, support and friendly care in the comfort of their own homes. Our friendly team provides assistance with a wide range of needs. This includes everything from organising personal care routines, to assisting with a simple pop-in service, through to more complex care support packages or 24/7 live-in care. This can be from half an hour visits to 24-hour services, providing a continuum of care. We encourage people from the local community to give us a call or pop in to the branch for more information on how we can help."

In addition to providing homecare services on behalf of the local authority, the branch also provides a bespoke care service called ((My Way)), which is a private-pay initiative that enables individuals to directly choose the level of personal care they want to receive in their own homes.

The aim of the ((My Way)) bespoke package is to provide the vital support services to people in Broxbourne and the surrounding areas, yet enabling them to continue to live independently in their own homes, with 100% confidence. It lets individuals select the care they need, at the times they want, on the days that suit them and at a budget that suits them.

Manorcourt Homecare provides a range of high quality care and support services to people in the comfort of their own homes. Operating across the East of England and Greater London, the team undertakes more than 1.5 million visits each year to help deliver front-line services to people who require home-based support and care.

With over 15 years' experience, Manorcourt Homecare is passionate about enabling people to remain in their own homes and in supporting people to lead a fulfilling and active life as possible.

Community Care Workers – Broxbourne

Following the successful launch into Hertfordshire, Manorcourt Homecare is looking to expand its team of community care workers in order to meet the demand for high quality homecare.

If you are already working in the care sector or are perhaps looking for an opportunity to move into care-based work, Manorcourt Homecare is looking for people who have a desire to assist people in their local area, by providing a range of community-based care-at-home services.

No previous experience in care is required as Manorcourt Homecare will support you every step of the way to becoming a fully functional member of the team. Full training will be provided as well as shadowing shifts with an experienced member of staff - its aim is to work with all employees to help them be the very best that they can be.

In return, Manorcourt Homecare offers:

- Very competitive rates of pay and mileage
- All PPE and uniform costs are covered by Manorcourt Homecare
- Full training
- Flexible working patterns
- 28 days paid holiday a year
- Company pension

Successful candidates must have a full drivers licence and access to a vehicle.

For over 15 years, Manorcourt Homecare has been helping people remain as independent as possible, by delivering the assistance, support and care they need, when they need it, in their home.

Manorcourt Homecare is an Equal Opportunities Employer.

Cricket

Cricket club was first to try out scoreboard

Pioneer made Marigolds a world leader with invention

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsexnews.co.uk

DID you know that the first ever mechanical cricket scoreboard was invented in Harlow by Sam Deards, who was from the town?

The scoreboards are a familiar sight today at grounds all over the world, but the prototype for the first one was based at Marigolds, the home of Harlow Cricket Club in Old Harlow.

Estate agent Alan Howick turned detective to uncover this startling fact as he traced the history of cricket in Harlow over the last couple of hundred years for a new book.

The scoreboard and the concept of 'revolving figures' was probably invented around 1902 by Deards, whose factory was called the Victoria Dry-Glazing Works in Old Harlow.

After its initial trial at the Marigolds Sports Field in High Street, it was widely adopted throughout the UK.

A brilliant Victorian entrepreneur, Deards also created concrete block making machines and is surely Harlow's most famous and influential export – apart from Glenn Hoddle obviously!

His 'Victoria Dry Glazing' method was used to roof Liverpool Street Station in London, the Colonial and Indian Exhibition Hall in South Kensington, and the Crystal Palace when it was moved from its original site in Hyde Park to Sydenham in 1852.

Firefighter

Deards played for Harlow and also Moor Hall, another Harlow-based cricket club, during the 19th century.

He was also a firefighter in Harlow for 35 years, captain of Harlow Fire Station for 30 years; certainly a fascinating individual.

Howick, who is president of Harlow Cricket Club and co-owner of Old Harlow based estate agents Howick & Brooker, takes us on an interesting journey in his book, which also unravels the story behind the formation of the town's oldest club at Marigolds in Old Harlow, as well as some interesting snippets of information such as the fact that the world's most famous cricketer, W. G. Grace, played a few matches for neighbouring club Bishop's Stortford.

Any proceeds the book makes will go to the fund for a project to build a new clubhouse at the Shepherd Neame Essex League club.

Howick reveals that it was back in the reign of King George III in 1774 that cricket was first played in the 'village' of Harlow, an important route centre between London and Cambridge.

A match between Middlesex and 'the gentlemen of Harlow' was won by the latter.

Howick used our sister papers the Herts & Essex Observer and the Essex Chronicle to glean information about cricket in Harlow.

He certainly could not have used the Harlow Star for local knowledge – we weren't born until 1981.

The first cricket club established in Harlow appears to be Moor Hall CC in 1850, with a team made up of three reverends as well as two 'professionals' – paid staff more than likely used for their skills working the field rather than with the ball.

Although with a couple of vicars in the line-up there probably wouldn't have been too much sledging – even if it had been invented by them.

This club was launched by John Perry Watlington (1823-1882), a local magistrate and benefactor. Harlow itself might be deemed a 'new town' but the Moor Hall Estate dates back nearly 1000 years and is registered in the first Domesday Book put together under the orders of William the Conqueror in the 11th century.

Howick uncovers cricket clubs such as St Mary's Institute and Mulberry Tree CC in the mid-19th century, now long gone.

St Mary's, along with Moor Hall and an early club which went by the name of Harlow but later dissolved, were probably the forefathers of what would eventually become Harlow Cricket Club, Howick concludes, with the three finally emerging together as a force around 1910.

But it is from an old photograph of a Harlow football team outside the Marigolds pavilion in the 1860s, that Howick concludes that cricket was actually played in this part of Old Harlow for at least 155 years.

Interspersed with some fantastic old photographs and cuttings from newspapers revealing historical information, not just about cricket in Harlow but also across Essex it is a must for not only cricket fans, but those who enjoy their history, particularly local history.

To order a copy of the book contact Howick at 01279 401902.

Fly-half return key as Rams target West win

Captain's upbeat as title-chasers Norfolk are up next

RFU London & SE Division Three North East

Harlow 34
Beccles 7

THE return of fly-half Danny Smith from a broken hand inspired the Rams who produced a fantastic display to dispatch hosts Beccles.

It has set up Saturday's trip to Kings Lynn to face second-placed West Norfolk – a team whom Harlow skipper Shaun Roberts labelled the “best team in the division” last season, despite the fact they were denied promotion.

Centre Ross Stalley, who has joined from neighbours Epping Upper Clapton, is proving a key signing.

Harlow have also welcomed back tighthead prop Peter Frost from injury.

But the return of Smith, so influential at No.10 and as a nerveless kicker, is a huge shot in the arm.

Roberts said: “Danny is outstanding. He specialises at fly-half and gives us that advantage over other sides. He's one of the best tens in this league and the league above.”

Travelling

Harlow will be without centre Luke Bowering and back row specialist Darren Hawkins for the rest of the season as they have gone travelling, while Rob Mackie is unavailable on Saturday.

Roberts is relishing Saturday's trip.

“It will be a real test to see how far we have come this season,” he said. “They will be very strong this year.”

In atrocious conditions, Harlow scored six tries against Beccles to remain third in the table.

Smith fed Mackie who finished well under pressure in a corner.

On 15 minutes, Francis Brown drew two defenders and slid the ball in behind with a grubber kick, allowing Alistair Phillips to out-sprint the defence to finish off Harlow's second try.

A converted try after half-time reduced the deficit to 15-7.

Beccles then missed two kickable penalties which could have made things very interesting.

Roberts said: “They had two kicks in front of the posts which they missed. We managed to pull away at the end. Our greater levels of fitness showed true.”

Inside centre Scott Whitby, promoted from the youth set-up, made the visitors pay as he broke through for the fourth Harlow try, securing a bonus point.

Smith was finally successful with a conversion and the Rams were 22-7 ahead.

As the game moved into the final quarter Harlow took control once again.

A well-worked move allowed debutant Stalley space that he exploited and finished off a converted try well.

Ryan McGlone broke to score the final unconverted try.

Roberts added: “It was a very good win. They are fighting for their lives.”

HARLOW: Cunningham, M. Bowering, Fitzgerald, Twiner, Palmer, Roberts, Drake, Claridge, McGlone, Smith, Mackie, Whitby, Stalley, Phillips, Brown. replacements (all used), Frost, Robinson, Grimley.

Wood knocks Woodham

GABRIEL WOOD scored four tries as Harlow Rugby Club's U11s competed in a tournament at South Woodham Ferrers.

Sam Kotze also scored a hat-trick of tries.

Harlow U11s beat the Harlow U10 team seven tries to two.

The U11s lost 11-3 to the hosts and lost 10-1 to Wanstead.

Meanwhile, in women's rugby National Challenge South East North One leaders Southwold Swallows left Harlow Ladies in a flap as they won 36-5 on Sunday.

Harlow only had 13 players but showed grit and passion throughout.

An overlap opened up after ten minutes for Southwold to score their first try.

New Harlow hooker Kathleen Blake impressed in the scrum for the visitors.

Harlow's determination was rewarded when club chairman Tracey Wedd scored a morale-boosting try.

Harlow went into half-time 15-5 down but with the game very much to play for.

But after the break Harlow lost Gemma Wood and Emma Hancock to injury.

Despite this Harlow spent most of the second half in Southwold's territory.

But the hosts intercepted a couple of passes to score three more tries and secure a bonus point.

Another injury to Harlow captain Lorna Hunter meant the game finished early, but the score still stood.

Trophy heartbreak for Hawks

FA Trophy second qualifying round

Molesey 4
Harlow Town 3

HARLOW Town bowed out of the FA Trophy 4-3 after throwing away a two-goal lead in the last 12 minutes.

The Hawks took the lead after just four minutes when Ryan Melaugh's corner found Jared Small in the box, and he headed home from six yards out.

A controversial moment saw Molesey stopper Liam Allen charge out and foul Leon Fisher outside the box.

The keeper escaped with a yellow card.

Melaugh had a hand in the second Harlow goal on 28 minutes.

His free-kick was whipped into the six-yard box and was turned into his own net by Molesey defender Luke Elliott.

The hosts hit straight back though, when Staff Palmer rifled a shot past Harlow stopper Niklas Freund.

The visitors made it 3-1 ten minutes into the second half. Layne Eadie crossed low and Fisher, stabbed home his first Harlow goal.

Molesey made it 3-2 on 78 minutes when James McShane finished well.

On 85 minutes it looked as though Molesey had earned a replay, when Palmer beat the offside trap and stroked home.

However, the comeback was complete as the game entered injury-time.

McShane reached the byline and pulled back for Reis Stanislaus to finish, leaving Harlow wondering how they threw it away.

Hawks boss Danny Chapman said: “We've had some good cup runs, and some fun along the way. We need to get back to the league now and the boys are strong enough to do that.”

“We have got to put some wins together. We've made a few bob for the club.”

“We have got two tough games coming up: Tilbury away and then Hornchurch away on Tuesday. You put three or four wins together and you are back in there. It is hard when you are so many games behind the rest.”

Golds galore for judo players

Judo

A TEAM of ten young red and yellow belts players competed in Harlow Judo Club's U16 12th Mon & below competition held at Harlow Leisurezone.

Club members secured a fantastic haul of nine trophies. Some very good clubs attended the event so the standard of judo was high.

Owen Lambert, ten, Seth Horsley, eight, and Kenzie Deamer, nine, all won golds.

A silver medal was won by eight-year-old Ralfy Webb.

Five bronze medals were won by Harlow players: Fleur Salhi, nine, Matthew Chapman, 11, Kane Horsley, ten, Charlie Armstrong, eight, and Neo Hamilton, nine.

Ten-year-old Jake Salhi just missed out on a medal.

Club spokesman Foong Lambert said: "All players had graded very recently which therefore meant that some of them went up to the next belt category facing new competitors, however, all players fought extremely well and as always, gained valuable experience.

"Special thanks go to the event organisers, committee members and parents who volunteered in different areas of the event especially before and after the competition."

The club is based in Foldcroft.

Big Cats aim to derail the Derby express

LEVETT Essex Leopards will aim to end Derby Trailblazers' unbeaten start to the NBL Division One season when they travel to the Midlands on Saturday.

It will be a revenge mission for Steve Ogunjimi's team after Trailblazers knocked them out of the National Cup with a 79-69 victory at the Brentwood Centre on Sunday.

Matt Shaw's side have won their opening four Division One games as well as progressing in the cup, while Leopards sit in mid-table with two wins and as many losses.

A dominant second-half performance saw Leopards collect their second league victory of the season as they hammered Bradford Dragons 80-61 on Saturday.

Ogunjimi's team trailed only briefly in the first half and controlled the second as they made their long trip home with a second away league victory in succession.

A balanced scoring effort saw six Leopards finish in double figures, with Ladi Brown, Will Ashby and Tom Martin leading the way on 12 points. Brown added eight rebounds, two assists and two steals, while Ashby dished out four assists.

Courtney van Beest finished with 11 points and seven rebounds, with Albert Margai and Justin Hitchman each scoring ten points.

A pair of Dougie Bennett free-throws sent Leopards into the final break with a 56-49 lead.

Margai made it a double-digit game with the opening score of the fourth period and the Leopards captain hit six points in an 8-0 run to start the quarter.

The following day Derby reached the semi-finals with a 79-69 victory over the Leopards.

an immediate impact, scoring on 85 minutes.

His speculative shot from the right side, just outside the box, again deceived Sambridge who got his hands to it but could not stop it going in.

Chapman added: "I don't think about teams beating you in the past - I always thought we would win the game."

Harlow are floundering in 12th but Chapman remains resolute.

"It was always our aim to win the league or get promoted, that hasn't changed," he said.

Commenting on the failure to sign the defensive midfielder he had targeted, he added: "The club we were looking to get him from are debating, going to and fro, so at the moment that's on hold."

The Harlow manager is unlikely to bring in a youth team player on loan from a professional club.

"I'm not a lover of loans. You can get a settled side and then that parent club could call that player back and you are back to square one. If we can bring someone back on a permanent basis I would rather do that. But I would never rule it out completely," he added. Forest chopped down to stretch gr-eight run

Harlow march on despite the absence of key forward

East Men's Hockey League Division Six South East

Harlow 3
Waltham Forest IV 1

WALTHAM Forest were cut down as Harlow made it a great eight to remain top of Division Six South East.

Adam Ottley stepped in to replace leading scorer Andy Boughtwood and showed his class having a part in all of Harlow's goals.

Harlow started on the front foot, pushing Forest deep into their own territory and swiftly moving the ball around the mid-field.

A flurry of attacks led to a number of penalty corners, which didn't quite hit the mark and left Harlow searching for the opener.

The breakthrough came midway through the half with Ottley and Benn Hagger neatly passing the ball between them.

Hagger broke down the baseline, skipping past a couple of defenders before slipping it back to Ottley who was waiting at the penalty spot to send a thunderous shot past the keeper.

Harlow continued to press, looking to open the advantage leading into half-time, but seconds before the whistle Forest broke from deep.

With Forest players inside the Harlow D, a goalmouth scramble ensued and the ball was eventually flicked high into the net.

Having conceded on the stroke of half-time Harlow knew they had to respond well in the second half.

They immediately looked to regain the lead and within a few minutes had a penalty corner.

Ottley rifled a shot towards a bottom corner and Rhys Mace was on hand to make sure it definitely hit its mark.

Forest started to exert some of their own pressure, but this only opened up the space on the pitch.

As Harlow moved the ball around, Forest found themselves chasing shadows, so much so that when Ottley received the ball in the opposition D, he had time to look up, shimmy past a defender and lay it off for Cyrus Mace to slot home under the keeper.

Style

Harlow saw the game out in style, keeping possession and ensuring all three points stayed with the leaders, who are undefeated at home this season.

Harlow are three points clear at the top of the table.

Harlow also had a cup match on Sunday in the England Vase first round, against Cheshunt's first team.

It was always going to be a tough fixture but Harlow had the game tied at 1-1 for 50 minutes before key playmaker Kyle Plumridge dislocated his shoulder and will be out until the new year.

This knocked Harlow sideways and Cheshunt eventually ran out 5-1 winners.

Ollie Eldridge (3), James Boutell and Richard Martins struck for Cheshunt.

Kim Harvey got Harlow's reply.

CLOSE CONTROL: Benn Hagger in action for Harlow

Injuries costly for Ladies team

A WELL-organised and well-drilled Chelmsford thirds proved too strong for Harlow Ladies in Essex Women's Hockey League Premier Division.

The hosts went in front through Rowena Rickett.

She dribbled passed three Chelmsford defenders before a one-two with Jo Chambers allowed her to finish high into the net.

Chelmsford came back almost immediately and equalised.

Harlow keeper Laura Hay made a number of good saves but Chelmsford scored to lead 2-1 at the break.

Harlow went down to ten players and Chelmsford made it 3-1 just after half-time when Hay was unlucky as a good save rebounded to another Chelmsford attacker to rifle home.

Harlow made a good fist of the game when Sam Care was always in control of her player and Lara Horrax kept Chelmsford's strongest player under wraps.

An injury to midfielder and skipper Emma Twiddle further limited the forward momentum but player of the match Rickett wasn't to be deterred.

Short corner opportunities went narrowly wide, while the visitors rounded off the scoring when Hay was unsighted.

Harlow visit leaders Upminster on Saturday.

Norkeliunas ignites Hawks

THE Hawks thrashed Brentwood Bears 83-42 in the Essex Basketball League Division Two at Harlow Leisurezone on Friday.

Rimantas Norkeliunas racked up eight points in the first eight minutes including four from four at the foul line to establish an early lead.

Shab Niaz also scored from the three-point line, while Danny Cohen hit six points.

The Bears had no answer for Norkeliunas as he notched 20 points and Hawks were 44-20 up at half-time.

Richard Whytock opened his scoring campaign with a two-pointer and Hawks extended their lead to 58-27.

The final quarter began with the Bears stealing a quick seven points unanswered.

Niaz put a stop to their run with another three-pointer and three more from the foul line.

Lee Morris (two three-pointers) and Norkeliunas, with nine points, turned it into a rout.

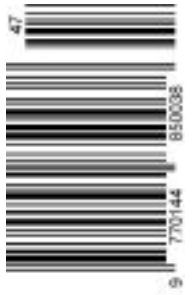

The Hawks lost 68-60 to North Herts Knights in the Herts League last Wednesday.

SAM'S THE MAN!

Holloway eyes Hawks' key role after injury comeback

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsexnews.co.uk

LESS than ten months after a serious injury raised question marks over his football career, Hawks player Sam Holloway has told boss Danny Chapman he could be the answer to his mid-field conundrum.

The Harlow Town boss has finally called time on his bid to bring in a holding midfielder, after hitting a wall of trouble from an unnamed Ryman Premier club who do not wish to lose their back-four shield.

But Holloway, 28, is confident he can fill that hole for Hawks, despite the fact that he was brought in as central defensive cover.

Ironically Holloway suffered his double leg break back in February at Thurrock when Chapman experimented by playing him in the holding midfield role.

The former Heybridge, Thurrock and Redbridge player relishes that role and now he is fully fit he is desperate to help Hawks' stuttering promotion challenge.

Critical

Holloway has been playing on loan at Essex Senior League side Enfield 1893 to rebuild his fitness, and came on for the last 20 minutes of Harlow's 3-1 win over Heybridge Swifts on Tuesday, with the Ryman North match entering a critical phase.

Holloway said: "Harlow signed me as a centre-half because they saw me play at Thurrock at centre-half.

"But I've always played the holding role in midfield for the past year or two years.

"It's not something new to me. It's something I feel I'm better at than at centre-half.

"That's ideally where I want to play. But I'm just happy to be out there to be honest. To get back to where I want to be.

"It's good to be back. I love it here. The players and fans have all supported me since I did it [the injury].

"Hopefully I can kick on. I have played on loan at Enfield and I've played three or four games there now. The fitness has come back. It's just that next level."

With a serious injury such as the one Holloway sustained it can often have a psychological impact on a player, but there were no such qualms for the versatile player.

"The first time I tested it was when we played Concord [in the Essex Senior Cup]," he said.

"That was the first real test for me and when I came through that, it's not in your head any more. You don't think about it. I know it sounds stupid, but if you do you are already beaten at the start."

Holloway hopes Harlow can now start to climb the table. "We need to get in that winning mentality and kick on from there. We are definitely good enough to go up.

"Last year we were so unlucky not to go up by a point. And this year there's not too many different boys in there.

"We have lost a couple but we have got people like [Ibrahima] Sonko in there, which more than makes up for it. We're all pulling in the right direction.

"It's great to have someone like him but everyone needs to do their own job.

"I have been here two years now and last year we were very unlucky.

"It seems to be a common occurrence getting in the play-offs and not just quite getting over the line. But we will do it this year, I have every confidence in them."

Sonko (groin) could return this weekend at Tilbury, but there are doubts over utility player Leon Antoine (groin) and central midfielder Leon Fisher (ankle).

Midfielder Fabian Simms returns from a one-match suspension.

Winning ugly way to Swift promotion

Ryman North

Harlow Tn 3
Heybridge Swifts 1

HAWKS boss Danny Chapman said his side simply have to "win ugly" if they are to close the gap on the promotion-chasing teams.

That's exactly what they did on Tuesday as bogey side Heybridge Swifts were dispatched amid Storm Barney, as the gale-force conditions made for unattractive and often farcical football at The Harlow Arena.

Two goals in the last 15 minutes sealed victory for Harlow Town.

Chapman said: "The most important thing tonight was to get three points. We were going to have to win ugly because of the conditions. We kept at it and got what we deserved.
